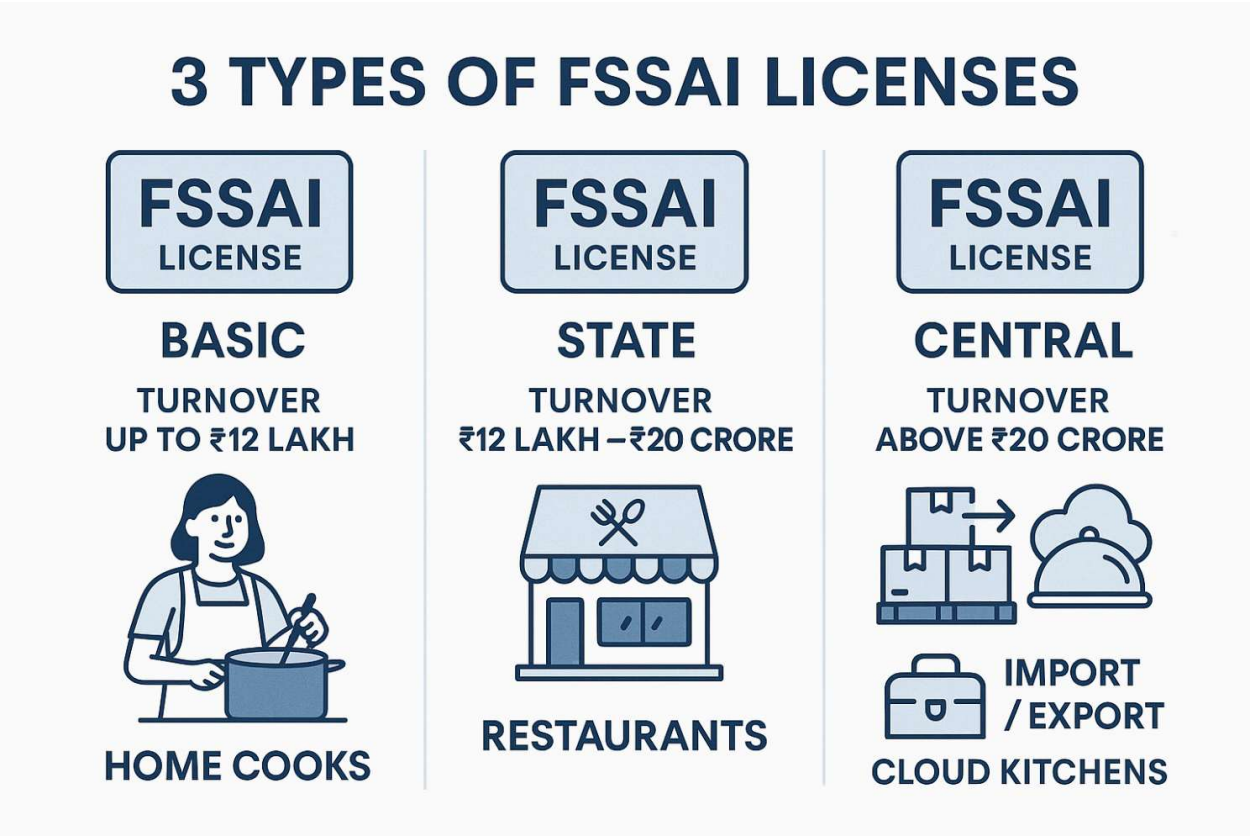
FSSAI License Consultants in Delhi: A Full Guide to Registration, Training & FOSTAC Certificate

Food safety is a moral and legal obligation. Whether you own a cloud kitchen in Noida, a home bakery in Lajpat Nagar or a restaurant in Connaught Place, you must have a current FSSAI licence if you work in the food industry.

Getting an FSSAI license, completing FSSAI training courses, and downloading your FOSTAC certificate online can be a technical process. That's why working with expert FSSAI license consultants in Delhi like Standphill India is the smart choice.

Let's walk through the process step-by-step.



✅ What Is FSSAI & Who Needs It?

FSSAI (Food Safety and Standards Authority of India) ensures that food businesses follow hygiene and safety standards. Every food operator needs to register or obtain a license from FSSAI—no matter how small or large the business.

WHAT IS FSSAI & WHO NEEDS IT?

FOOD SAFETY

You need FSSAI registration or license if you:

1. Cook or Sell Food Items

If you're preparing food for others—whether it's snacks, meals, bakery items, or sweets—you must register with FSSAI. This applies to:

- Street food vendors
- Home-based bakers
- Meal prep businesses
- Temporary food stalls (e.g., at fairs or events)

Even if you're cooking from home and selling through social media or WhatsApp, FSSAI Basic Registration is legally required.

2. Import/Export Food Products

You need an FSSAI Central License. This is required if your company imports or exports food, drinks, spices, or ingredients to or from India.

This comprises:

- Food package exporters
- importers of supplements, health beverages, or edible oils
- Food products are shipped overseas by international internet vendors.
- Before the food is delivered to customers, the FSSAI makes sure it satisfies Indian safety regulations.

3. Operate Cloud Kitchens

Cloud kitchens are delivery-only restaurants without dine-in facilities. If you run a cloud kitchen from home or commercial space, you need:

- FSSAI State or Central License (based on turnover)
- FOSTAC food safety training for staff

This is important for platforms like Swiggy, Zomato, or your own delivery app.

4. Own a Restaurant or Dhaba

If you own a food outlet, dine-in restaurant, café, or highway dhaba, an FSSAI License is mandatory. Depending on your scale:

- Small eateries → State License
- Chains or franchises → Central License
- You'll also need Food Safety Supervisors trained via FOSTAC

Health inspectors often verify your FSSAI status during audits.

5. Package or Store Food

If you deal with food packaging, labeling, warehousing, or cold storage, you fall under FSSAI's regulations. This includes:

- Food packers
- Warehousing units

- Suppliers storing food before distribution

You must mention the FSSAI license number on the product label.

6. Run a Tiffin or Home Delivery Business

Many individuals and startups run tiffin services or meal delivery from home. FSSAI Basic Registration is compulsory here as well. It ensures:

- Your kitchen follows hygiene standards
- You can partner with food delivery platforms
- Your customers trust your food source

Even a solo food delivery operation must comply with FSSAI guidelines.

🏷️ Types of FSSAI Licenses

Depending on your business scale and turnover, FSSAI offers three license types:

Type Who Needs It Fee (Govt) Validity

Basic Registration Turnover < ₹12 lakh/year ₹100/year 1–5 years

State License Turnover ₹12 lakh–20 crore/year ₹2,000–₹5,000/year 1–5 years

Central License Turnover > ₹20 crore/year, ₹7,500/year 1–5 years

The FSSAI certification services in Delhi price can vary based on consultation, business category, number of products, etc.
